VENUE

Padua is a city 40 km west of Venice. It is the economic and communications hub of north-east Italy. Padua's population is 213,000 (Statistics of 2009). Padua is famous for its University founded in 1222. The list of professors and alumni of the university of Padua includes, among others, Galileo Galilei, Nicolaus Copernicus, Gabriele Falloppio, Pietro Bembo, Torquato Tasso. The place of Padua in the history of art is nearly as important as its place in the history of learning. The list of distinguished artists operating in Padua includes, among others, Giotto, Donatello, Andrea Mantegna, Antonio Canova. Padua is also the birth place of the famous architect Andrea Palladio. Padua includes several historical and artistic sites, such as, the Basilica of Saint Anthony, Scrovegni Chappel, Church of Eremitani, Palazzo della Ragione and several Museums and Galleries. The conference will be held at Villa Ottoboni Convention Centre, a 16th century villa near the centre of Padua. In April the temperature in Padua ranges between 12 and 22°C (53 and 72°F).

Accommodation

The Organizing Committee will select a few hotels in Padua, near Villa Ottoboni Convention Centre, willing to apply special rates for Conferences participants. Courtesy buses will be arranged from these hotels to the Conferences venue. Further information will be posted in the Conferences official web-site.

Travel and Trasportation

By plane: The airports nearest to Padua are Venice Marco Polo (40 km from Padua) and Verona Catullo (80 km from Padua); both airports are served by many frequent international flights.

By train: Padua station is on the main Milan-Venice railway link, served by numerous international trains. Intercity and Eurostar trains stop at Padua.

By car: Padua is on the A4 (Milan-Venice) motorway, which is linked to the European motorway network.

FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT AND CALL FOR PAPERS

IIR INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCES

Sources/Sinks alternative to the outside Air for Heat Pump and Air-Conditioning Techniques (Alternative Sources - AS)

Padua, Italy, April 5-6-7, 2011

International Sorption Heat Pump Conference (ISHPC11)

Padua, Italy, April 6-7-8, 2011

IIR Commissions E1 (Air Conditioning) and E2 (Heat pumps, energy recovery)

OBJECTIVES OF THE CONFERENCES AND TOPICS

Sources/Sinks alternative to the outside Air for Heat Pumps and Air-Conditioning Techniques (Alternative Sources - AS)

Commission E1 with Commission E2

Heat sources and heat sinks of heat pumps and refrigeration systems, respectively, have an immense impact on performance. The conference is aiming at joining heat sink and heat source research, development, and experience of all kind of heat pumping and refrigerating technologies, promoting the exchange of ideas among the researchers, scientists and engineers working from all over the world.

Topics

- Exhaust (ventilation) air
- Ground water
- Ground-source systems horizontal
- Ground-source systems vertical
- River and lake water
- Sea water
- Free cooling
- Simultaneous heating and cooling
- Closed water loop
- Waste water and effluent
- Solar
- Dual source

International Sorption Heat Pump Conference ISHPC11

Commission E1 with Commission E2

This triennial conference is dedicated to heat pumping devices which make use of ab- or adsorption effects. Researchers, scientists and engineers find here a forum to exchange ideas and experiences on basic findings, applied topics and pilot plants regarding Sorption Heat Pumps Technology.
